Diabetes and Endocrinology

Thursday 9 October 2025

09:25 – 17:00

Online

Programme highlights include:

- Managing diabetes in the young and older populations
- Challenges of individualising diabetes care
- The role of incretin hormones in diabetes and obesity
- New drugs in osteoporosis
- Thyroid disease in pregnancy
- Hormone replacement in young and menopausal women

There have been a number of new and exciting developments in the fields of both diabetes and endocrinology in the last few years. The challenges in diabetes and endocrinology management are varied and we address these from a demographic, clinical and service provision perspective. In view of this rapidly changing landscape, the aim of this symposium is to update current knowledge of these developments and inform management of increasingly complex conditions.

The wide range of topics and excellent expert speakers will appeal to both general and specialist clinicians dealing with these conditions in primary and secondary care as well as nursing, scientific staff, allied health professionals and medical students.

Talks available to all delegates via catch-up for 28 days post event.
