Acute Dermatology

Wednesday 13 January 2027

13:00 – 16:45 (UK Time)

Online Half Day Course

Delegates will learn how to:

- Recognise key dermatological conditions
- Formulate accurate differential diagnoses
- Initiate appropriate investigations
- Management of challenging presentations such as blistering disorders, erythroderma, red legs, and generalised pruritus.

This focused dermatology half day course is designed to equip medical professionals with the practical skills and clinical confidence needed to assess and manage common acute skin presentations encountered in general medical practice.

Ideal for physicians, trainees, and healthcare professionals managing acute medical patients, this course provides clinically relevant knowledge that can be applied immediately in everyday practice

Catch up will be available to registered delegates and full details are available on the website.
